JEN ANISTON BASHES YOUNG HOLLYWOOD

JENNIFER ANISTON is NOT making friends with today's young actresses. Jen says they're ruining Hollywood's sexy image by dressing like frumpy grandmothers.

The 20-somethings should shape up and start showing off their shapes, says the 44-year-old "We're the Millers" star.

"It pains me to see young beauties like Jennifer Lawrence, Scarlett Johansson, Keira Knightley or Emma Stone dress frumpy or in a long gown that looks like their grandmother's curtains," Jen told a pal.

"Older, piled-high hairstyles and caked-on makeup also gall me.

"THIS IS THE TIME they should go with as little makeup as possible and dress as edgy and young as they possibly can."

In a recent interview, Jen didn't name names, but sources say she was clearly addressing young starlets Lawrence, 23, Johansson, 29, Knightley, 28, and Stone, 25, when she admonished: "Don't grow up so fast. When you are in your 20s, look in your 20s...Girls in their 20s now are looking like they're in their 30s.

"I would say enjoy your age... It flies by."

And the actress spelled out to her pal exactly how to stay glam: "Girls like Jennifer and Keira should stay fresh-faced, keep their hemlines high, ditch those clunky outfit-killing shoes and avoid dressing in a famous designer's clothes just because they are famous designers.

"Young Hollywood is growing up so fast, but they don't have to rush it with outfits that are way beyond their years. They should revel in their youth – they'll have plenty of time to rein it in when they're older."

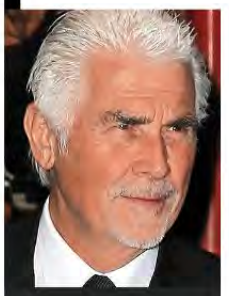
BARBRA STREISAND has always been a demanding diva, but now she's going overboard – not only ticking off her family but ruffling the feathers of the Divine Miss M, Bette Midler herself!

Bette, 68, recently finished a two-month run of the hit play "I'll Eat You Last" on Broadway. Her portrayal of brash Hollywood talent agent Sue Mengers won critical praise and set box-office records at New York's Booth Theatre.

Now, Bette wants to turn the one-woman show into a film, but there's a catch: Barbra has secretly been in talks to get the movie rights for herself!

MENGERS, WHO DIED IN 2011, WAS a close friend of the "Funny Girl" star – and the battle over who'll take the play to the big screen is quickly becoming an all-out war between the two showbiz legends – and neither leading lady is willing to back down.



Babs' hubby, James Brolin

"Bette considers this play her baby, and if it's going to be made into a film she feels it should be with her name attached," said an insider. "But Barbra doesn't care. She wants it and she's going after it.

"Barbra says she wants to produce, direct and star in this film and she said she won't take no for an answer."

Bette is just the latest person to be steamrolled by Barbra in the past few months. Usually, says the insider, it's her family that feels her wrath.

While they're well-versed in her demanding ways, the 71-year-old performer has become so "overbearing and verbally abusive" lately that her loved ones are "fed up and running in the opposite direction."

As The ENQUIRER previously reported, her 15-year marriage to James Brolin is on the brink of collapse because of her interference

The superstar has interfered in her husband's relationship with son Josh Brolin (at left with ex-wife Diane Lane). Below, Babs and son Jason in his relationship with his troubled son, Josh Brolin.

And Barbra also has struggled with her relationship with her own son. In April 2012, we revealed that she'd turned her back on her only child, Jason Gould, because she didn't approve of his hard-partying ways. Jason is openly gay and HIV-positive, and Barbra worried his lifestyle was putting his health at risk.

Although the two patched things up, Barbra's recently ramped up her busybody ways – and Jason has been telling pals he won't take her calls anymore, says the insider.

"Barbra is a perfectionist – everyone knows that, but lately she's gotten much worse," the insider added. "She's completely alienated a lot of people – and she doesn't seem to care."

Now, you can add the Divine Miss M to the ticked-off list.

JOAN FONTAINE'S DEATHBED GRUDGES

Misery that haunted Hollywood legend

ONE of the bitterest family feuds in Hollywood history finally ended with Joan Fontaine's death.

The reclusive Oscar winner despised her equally famous sister Olivia de Havilland for decades, and she took that hatred to the grave.

"Their life was a constant battle of egos," said a source close to Fontaine, who passed away on Dec. 15 at age 96 on her Carmel, attempts at reconciliation over the years, but the truces never lasted. Joan would not bury the hatchet."

THEIR EPIC RIFT STRETCHED ALL the way back to 1942. Both were up for Best Actress Oscars, and when Fontaine won for her role in "Suspicion" over de Havilland's performance in "Hold Back the Dawn," Olivia claimed: "She was haughty to me after that."

But Olivia got even with her snooty sibling in 1947. After winning an Oscar for "To Each His Own," Olivia brushed off Joan's attempt to congratulate her as she left the stage.

"That stung Joan deeply," said the source.

The final nail in the relationship came in 1975, when Joan claimed her sister didn't invite her to a memorial service for their recently departed mother. Olivia, now 97, insisted that she did inform Joan but was told she was too busy to attend.

"They did not talk after that," said the source.

Joan's bitterness grew so intense, she once remarked: "I married first, won the Oscar before Olivia did, and if I die first, she'll undoubtedly be livid."

Rachael Ray FAMILY FEUD GETS NASTY!

Outrage over chef's funeral snub & tweets

ON the day of her Aunt Geraldine's funeral, Rachael Ray callously tweeted about cats, stew and TV's "Cake Boss" – but nothing about her tragic relative.

And in a bombshell new disclosure, Rachael's mother didn't even attend her own sister's send-off.

The ugly family feud that broke out following the death of the TV chef's 77-year-old aunt has exploded with bitter new charges. Last week, The ENQUIRER revealed that Rachael's Aunt Geraldine died after suffering a heart attack in the freezing cold on Nov. 29 after accidentally locking herself out of the upstate New York home of Rachael's mom Elsa, where she was house-sitting.

In an exclusive interview with The ENQUIRER, Rachael's cousin Gina Mesnick fumed:

"MY MOTHER IS DEAD TODAY because the Ray family neglected her." She revealed that her mother never got a key to the house where her sister (Rachael's mom), Elsa Scuderi, lived.

The bad feelings were further inflamed when Rachael, 45, her husband, John Cusimano, AND Elsa were no-shows at Geraldine's funeral in Ticonderoga, N.Y.

A representative for the TV star explained that she missed the services because of major work commitments but "paid her respects privately."

But in a new interview with The ENQUIRER in mid-December, Gina said she's now further insulted after learning about Rachael's lighthearted tweets on the day of the funeral, Dec. 5. "I found it very insensitive and inappropriate," Gina told The ENQUIRER. "It just shows how demeaning Rachael was to my family on the day we buried my mom after she died under such horrible circumstances."

Rachael's late aunt

Gina also pointed out that even if Rachael had work commitments, there was no apparent reason why Cusimano couldn't have represented the couple at the funeral. And she's further outraged that Rachael's mom not only missed the event but hasn't even spoken to anyone in Gina's family since the tragedy.

"It's inexcusable," blasted Gina. "It shows a total lack of caring."

"LAWRENCE of Arabia" star Peter O'Toole took a sizzling secret to his grave – he bedded Elizabeth Taylor behind the back of his best pal and drinking buddy Richard Burton!

Sources say O'Toole – who died at age 81 on Dec. 14 after years of failing health – never revealed the shocking sex tryst after Liz begged him to keep quiet for fear of hurting Burton.

"Peter was an incorrigible womanizer, and Liz was the woman of his dreams," a source told The ENQUIRER. "He secretly lusted after her, and he was jealous that Burton won her heart."

As young men, O'Toole and Burton struggled together to make it as actors, living near each other in London and boozing in local pubs.

Eventually, they both hit it big, and Burton was on his first stormy marriage to Taylor when all three filmed "Under Milk Wood" in 1972 in southern Wales.

"There was a lot of drinking going on at the time," said another source. "One night, things got out of control between Peter and Elizabeth, and they ended up having sex. That was the only time, but it fulfilled a lifelong dream for Peter.

"Elizabeth always tried to keep Peter and Richard apart after that. She was afraid that Peter would get drunk, and slip and tell Richard what happened."

BUT SATISFYING HIS SECRET LUST sent Irish-born O'Toole into a downward spiral, sources said.

"After that night, Peter's drinking became much worse," revealed the second source. "It's likely he was trying to drown his shame at betraying his good friend, Richard."

O'Toole's heavy boozing eventually wrecked his health, and in 1976 doctors removed his pancreas and much of his stomach – forcing him to give up the bottle.

In 1979, he divorced his only wife, Welsh actress Sian Phillips, the mother of two of his three children.

During his stellar career, the talented actor was nominated for a record eight Oscars without a win. The star of "Becket," "The Lion in Winter," "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and "The Stunt Man" poked fun at his frustration at the Oscar ceremony in 2003, when he was awarded a golden statuette for lifetime achievement.

SIZZLING SECRET PETER O'TOOLE TOOK TO GRAVE

'Lawrence of Arabia' star bedded Liz Taylor – BEHIND BEST PAL BURTON'S BACK

"Always a bridesmaid, never a bride, my foot," he chortled. "I have my very own Oscar now to be with me until death do us part. I am as delighted as I am honored, and I am honored."

O'Toole survived Burton, who died of a brain hemorrhage at age 58 in 1984, and Taylor, who passed away in March 2011 at age 79 of congestive heart failure.

"There was always a friendly competition between Peter and Richard," said the source. "When it came to Liz, the competition was fierce, but well-hidden. And after Peter achieved his secret dream of seducing Liz, he was overwhelmed with shame and guilt.

"Even after Richard died, both he and Elizabeth kept quiet about that night in Wales because they didn't want to sully Richard's memory.

"In the end, Peter took the secret with him to his grave."

NO SIGHT, NO PROBLEM

Blind hero saves woman from blaze – THEN HELPS PUT OUT FIRE!

Fire Chief Ron Parrish gives Tommy Barber his Citizen Hero award. Lt. Tommy Neiman, who responded to the fire, proudly stands by the brave granddad

TOMMY BARBER may be blind – but that didn't stop him from becoming a hero!

The granddad saved a Florida woman from certain death when he pulled her from her burning home.

"Tommy saved my life – no question," said a grateful Diane Marshall. "He's blind, but he had no fear. I'm alive today because of him."

Lt. Tommy Neiman of Florida's St. Lucie County Fire District added: "It was an incredibly brave act for a blind man. Tommy Barber put his own life at risk to help another person. He's a true hero."

THE AMAZING STORY UNFOLDED when Barber – who lost his vision to glaucoma 13 years ago – was visiting a friend, Susan Laney, at her apartment building in Fort Pierce, Fla., on Sept. 7.

"As I tapped my way along with my white cane, we smelled smoke in the hallway," recalled Barber, 54.

"Susan and I found the smoke was coming from under another apartment door.

"I started banging on the door, but there was no reply. I tried the handle and shoved – and the door flew open."

The two were immediately engulfed in a huge cloud of dense, choking smoke.

Despite that, Barber – who'd briefly served as a firefighter before going blind – pushed his way inside and found Marshall. She'd fallen asleep after starting to cook on the stove.

"I didn't know it, but the pot caught fire," said Marshall, who uses a mobility scooter to get around. "My apartment was about to burn up when Tommy came to the rescue."

Barber pulled Marshall out of the apartment and took her down the hallway to safety.

Then he and his friend bravely plunged back into the blazing apartment to fight the fire!

"We found the fire extinguisher, and I pulled the pin," Barber recalled. "I held it while I told Susan how to point the nozzle at the flames and sweep back and forth."

Gagging on smoke, the courageous pair battled the blaze, drenching the stove and kitchen walls until it was extinguished.

Upon seeing the damage, Lt. Neiman said: "Anyone sleeping there would have died of smoke inhalation within five minutes. Tommy Barber truly was a lifesaver."

The fire district honored both Barber and his friend Laney with Citizen Hero awards.

"I WAS JUST GLAD TO BE IN THE right place at the right time," said Barber, a father of two and grandfather of six who once worked as a concrete installer.

"Being blind isn't the end of the world. I tell people that no matter your disability, never, ever give up. You can still be of use to your fellow human beings."

ENQUIRER BROKE NEWS of Khloe & Lamar divorce

IN BIG, BOLD letters, TMZ broke the "stunning" news that Khloe Kardashian was officially ending her four-year marriage to NBA star Lamar Odom – and reality show fans let out a collective gasp.

But ENQUIRER readers weren't surprised – we've been detailing the tragic demise of the relationship for a LONG time!

In May, The ENQUIRER reported that 34-year-old Lamar's hard-partying, excessive boozing and roving eye were causing major issues for the couple. We also revealed that Khloe's momager, Kris Jenner, had given her daughter the names of several prominent Los Angeles divorce attorneys, demanding that Khloe "get rid of that no-good loser" ASAP.

A SOURCE AT THE TIME TOLD US: "Khloe wants to cut ties with Lamar and get on with her life. The official divorce filing is a matter of when, not if."

More recently, in our Dec. 9 issue, The ENQUIRER reported that Kris had ordered 29-year-old Khloe to sit down with their attorneys and hammer out a divorce deal – and that Lamar was refusing to sign anything until Khloe returned her $875,000 engagement ring and the K-clan forked over $10 million!

It's a sad ending – but one The ENQUIRER saw coming from a million miles away. As usual, stick with us if you want the inside scoop about your favorite celebrities!

OLYMPIC HERO'S DRAMATIC TRANSFORMATION

BRUCE JENNER seems ready to take the plunge – and transform himself into a woman!

The Olympic legend has reportedly consulted with a top Beverly Hills plastic surgeon about a common procedure that's usually an important step in making a sex change.

On Dec. 12, a source says Jenner met with the surgeon about undergoing a laryngeal shave. The procedure is done to smooth out the Adam's apple and generally only performed on men in the first stages of gender-reassignment surgery.

Since his split from wife Kris Jenner, "Bruce is slowly letting his true self come out," revealed an insider. "His family has always accepted that he has a strong feminine side, but no one can comprehend how a man who's been married three times and fathered six kids could have been living a lie all these years."

Bruce insists he wants the surgery because "I just never liked my trachea," but leading experts tell The ENQUIRER that his decision to have the procedure seems to indicate otherwise.

"A laryngeal shave is part of the facial feminization procedure we perform on men who want to transgender into women," Philadelphia-area plastic surgeon Dr. Sherman Leis, who has not treated

> "Life is too short not to be your true self"

Jenner, told The ENQUIRER. "In my 40 years of plastic surgery, I have never performed this operation on anyone but a transgendering male."

Although he has reportedly canceled the surgery for now, the 64-year-old former athlete – who let Kardashian family momager Kris wear the pants during their 22-year marriage – has long been dogged by reports about a secret gender-bending life.

His first wife, Chrystie Crownover, reportedly told Ellen Kardashian, who was married to Kris' ex-hubby Robert Kardashian, that the once-macho decathlon champion kept a secret stash of man-size lingerie. Chrystie recently denied suggesting that Bruce is a cross-dresser and claimed that Kris is trying to "ruin" Bruce by spreading rumors that he is a cross-dresser and planning transsexual surgery.

BRUCE HAS ALSO WORN MAKEUP and jewelry, and he enjoys regular beauty treatments such as manicures, pedicures and eyebrow plucking.

Lately, he's been wearing his hair in a feminine ponytail, which accentuates his delicate, surgically enhanced facial features. And he certainly didn't seem to mind donning blue lipstick and a wig, imitating Kris' hairstyle for his role in an upcoming movie spoof, "The Hungover Games."

But his most startling transformation to date could involve the laryngeal shave, an outpatient procedure that costs about $3,500.

During the operation, a surgeon reduces the size of the Adam's apple and, as part of the facial feminization process, will typically perform jaw reconstruction, lip enhancement, nose surgery and brow-lifts. The pitch of a person's voice can also be altered.

Top Michigan plastic surgeon Dr. Anthony Youn, who has not treated Jenner, noted: "Shaving an Adam's apple is a relatively uncommon operation except in gender reassignment individuals. The idea of Bruce having it done just because he doesn't like his neck is bizarre, to say the least."

As The ENQUIRER revealed, after his split from Kris – which laid the groundwork for a $175 million divorce battle – Bruce moved into his own place in Malibu, where he can live a more open life. Said the source: "He explained to the kids that life is too short not to be your true and authentic self."

Said a friend of the pair: "The guy's mom, a very conservative woman, was visibly startled by MacLaine's declaration – her eyes just about POPPED out of their sockets! Her son, totally repulsed, said he literally 'threw up a little in my mouth.' Ducking the sordid subject, he politely told Shirley, 'Umm, I don't think so. That's not exactly provable anyway. Let's talk about the movie instead.' " After lengthy discussion, Shirley burbled enthusiastically: "I'm going to win an Oscar for this movie!"

■ NO ONE disturbs My Lady during Tinkle Time! That's how JAY Z rolls, so when superstar wife BEYONCE excused herself for a ladies room run at West Hollywood's in-crowd eatery Crossroads, the mega-mogul rapper escorted her, then planted himself outside the door and stood guard – refusing to allow other customers to enter. "When one female diner tried, he politely put up his arms and asked her to wait until his wife was finished," said My SpyWitness. When he returned to the table, Jay Z explained to pals that he knows he's being overprotective, but doesn't want Beyonce subjected to some overzealous fan if caught in a compromising situation. "We don't need those problems," decreed Potty Patrolman.

■ LUCKY LEO! LEONARDO DICAPRIO's two best buds – notorious gamblers TOBEY MAGUIRE and BEN AFFLECK – are suddenly sweating because Leo's thisclose to collecting a whopping half a million buck$$$ bet they made with the star years ago! Said a pal of the perennial playboy bachelor: "Tobey and Ben, both high-rolling gamblers, bet Leo $250,000 each that he'd be married and a dad by age 40. Leo took the bet and went on to date a string of babes – supermodels GISELE BUNDCHEN, BAR REFAELI, ERIN HEATHERTON, etc. – but never got serious enough to tie the knot. Now, with his 40th just 11 months away, Tobey and Ben are sweating big-time about coughing up a staggering quarter of a million bucks each!"

■ LUCKY LEO'S NO MOONEY CLOONEY! And as Leo awaits his juicy payday, he's literally licking his lips, so do NOT bet he'll let his guys off the hook – the way GEORGE CLOONEY did when pals MICHELLE PFEIFFER and NICOLE KIDMAN bet him $10,000 each that he'd be married with kids by age 40. "Bachelor George won the bet, but then went all soft and sweet – he actually returned Michelle and Nicole's checks," said the source. "But not Leo – he's telling pals he can't wait to collect every last buck from Tobey and Ben!"

■ YOU BE THE JUDGE DEPT.: Talk about a suspicious mind! A tall, good-looking young waiter at Cravings Restaurant in West Hollywood told us that an aging, flamboyant customer he didn't recognize at first waltzed in, flashed him a big smile and drawled: "Hi...do you know me?" The waiter said: "No." Flashing an even bigger smile, the customer winked and said archly: "I'm a trainer!" The waiter seated the guy, who kept winking and grinning at him throughout the evening, then tipped him a whopping $100 on a $100 dinner bill and told him with a big, toothy smile: "You should come to one of my classes – for free!" Said the waiter: "By that time, I'd learned that my customer was exercise expert RICHARD SIMMONS, and it 100% seemed like he was... well, you know – hitting on me!" GEE, ya THINK??...And how was YOUR week?

NEW PLASTIC SURGERY MYSTERY

THEN

Grandma Goldie didn't look so hot when this photograph was taken in April 2011

NOW

The actress admits to having her eyes done, and an insider says she's had two face-lifts, fillers and laser treatments

GOLDIE'S A GOLDEN OLDIE!

AT 68, Goldie Hawn is a glowing golden girl – and one medical expert believes she may be hiding a plastic surgery secret!

The "Private Benjamin" star looked tanned, toned and facially freshened-up after a dinner date in Hollywood recently.

And as these photos show, the difference in her face between today and two years ago is absolutely staggering!

"Goldie looks 20 years younger than she did just two years ago," celebrity plastic surgeon Dr. Anthony Youn, who has not treated Hawn, told The ENQUIRER.

"She's transformed herself into a true California girl."

NOW A GRANDMOTHER OF FIVE, GOLDIE SOARED TO superstardom in 1968 as the ditsy, dancing, bikini-clad blonde on TV's "Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In."

She went on to win an Oscar for the 1969 comedy "Cactus Flower" and starred in a string of other hit films, including "The First Wives Club" and "Death Becomes Her."

The talented actress has admitted to having her eyes done, and an insider told The ENQUIRER in 2008 that Goldie had undergone two face-lifts in the past. But Goldie swore off major cosmetic surgery and began seeing a dermatologist to freshen her face with Perlane, an injectable filler that softens wrinkles.

Blonde, 68, SUDDENLY LOOKS 20 YEARS YOUNGER

Now, it appears the mother of three grown children – actress Kate Hudson, 34, and Oliver Hudson, 37, with second hubby Bill Hudson, and son Wyatt Russell, 27, with longtime love Kurt Russell – has slipped in a quickie "tuneup," said Dr. Youn.

"I suspect Goldie has had Botox injections to smooth forehead wrinkles and lift her eyebrows," Dr. Youn told The ENQUIRER.

"It also appears that she's undergone injections of a filler like Juvederm to plump up her lips and smooth her smile lines. Her skin looks pristine, which may be due to several laser treatments, such as the Syneron CO2RE system for skin tightening."

Dr. Youn estimates the procedures cost about $8,000, peanuts for Goldie, who's worth an estimated $60 million.

Still, Dr. Youn said: "Overall, she looks fantastic!"

STRESSED-OUT JULIA PACKS ON POUNDS

"PRETTY WOMAN" Julia Roberts has been looking pretty plump lately, sparking whispers that the mom of three may be pregnant again!

But The ENQUIRER has learned that Julia, 46, turned to food to deal with the stress of caring for her elderly mom, Betty Lou Motes, who was hospitalized three times for an excruciating back problem.

"Julia's not pregnant," confirmed a source. "But she's sick about her mom and she's been trying to eat her worries away.

Julia's sister, Lisa

"THE DISCS IN BETTY'S BACK HAVE degenerated, and it got so bad she had to have an artificial disc implanted. She had two surgeries recently. The first one didn't work out. She was still in a lot of pain and had to be taken to the emergency room."

Doctors discovered that the implant had shifted, which meant Betty needed to undergo another operation. Meanwhile, she was put in a back brace and needed to take pain medication. Julia was so concerned that she moved Betty into her Malibu home temporarily to keep a close eye on her.

But it hasn't been easy – especially with awards season getting under way. Julia, who earned a Golden Globe nomination for Best Supporting Actress for her role in "August: Osage County," has been promoting the movie along with taking care of her mom. "It's all taken an emotional and physical toll on her," said the source.

Betty has since moved back into her nearby Pacific Palisades home, where Julia's sister Lisa is now caring for her.

As for Julia, the source says she's "frantically trying to take the weight off as fast as she can."

Kirstie Alley LIPOSUCTION SHOCKER!

Has 'Fat Actress' HAD DRASTIC WEIGHT-LOSS SURGERY?

IN an astonishing transformation, Kirstie Alley suddenly has a smoking-hot body – and friends are whispering that she's secretly resorted to liposuction.

The 62-year-old sitcom queen – whose new TV Land show "Kirstie" debuted Dec. 4 – seems to have won a skirmish in her decades-long battle of the bulge and is flaunting her brand-new figure.

While the 5-foot-8 star has always maintained that she loses weight through eating right and exercise, insiders believe her "diet secret" may involve a cosmetic procedure.

"Kirstie went from flabby to taut very quickly," disclosed a close source. "Her friends think she finally bit the bullet and had fat sucked out of her most troublesome spots – her butt, upper thighs and stomach area. Her thighs and butt have always been problem areas. No matter how much she's lost on yo-yo diets, certain body parts have been resistant.

"EVER SINCE SHE TURNED 60, she's been preaching to friends that women need regular maintenance if they want to keep looking fit."

In 2009, Kirstie checked into a fat farm after sources told The ENQUIRER her weight had ballooned to 265 pounds. But during a Dec. 4 interview on Howard Stern's Sirius radio show, the TV veteran claimed that at her heaviest she weighed 230 pounds. She said she lost 25 pounds on her Organic Liaison weight-loss program and 15 more during her 2011 run on "Dancing with the Stars" – dropping her to 190.

She also insisted that she has not had surgical assistance. "I don't have any surgery," she said. "I don't think you should be filling your face. I don't do any of it."

The source said: "Kirstie gradually put on 10 pounds after 'DWTS,' boosting her to around 200. She lost her focus and her figure suffered. She has almost zero self-control when it comes to fattening foods." During her worst binge periods, she admits to wolfing down 8,000 calories a day along with 12 grape sodas.

"Kirstie's weight was hovering right at 200 earlier this year when she said, 'Enough!'" noted the source. That's when she apparently decided to take extreme measures.

"Although Kirstie claimed she started eating better and busting her butt working out, her friends aren't buying it," revealed the source.

"She may have accomplished some of what appears to be a 35-pound weight loss the old-fashioned way, but her pals believe she got down to her current goal, around 165, with the aid of liposuction."

When asked for comment, Kirstie said that she was flattered by the idea that she looks so good people think she may have had a procedure. But she denied undergoing surgery or liposuction.

The portly performer has tremendous incentive for wanting to look her best right now. She's attempting a career comeback with her new sitcom, in which she plays fading Broadway star Maddie Banks alongside her former "Cheers" co-star Rhea Perlman and "Seinfeld" alum Michael Richards.

As far back as 2007, The ENQUIRER reported that the starch-loving star was considering lipo after her contract with the Jenny Craig diet plan ended and she was frustrated she hadn't reached her weight-loss goals.

"Today she feels it's now or never for achieving her dream body," said the source.

"Although Kirstie isn't admitting to having lipo, she really doesn't have a problem with a little body sculpting if it's the finishing touch on hard work."

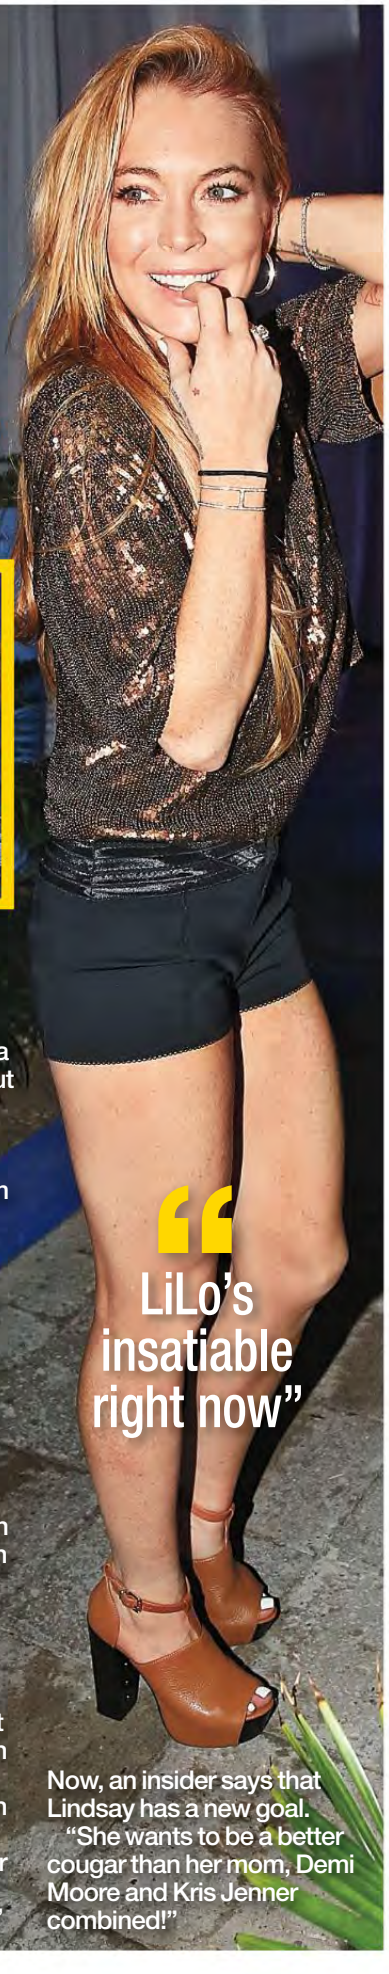
LINDSAY TURNING INTO A COUGAR!



Liam Neeson's son, 18, IS LOHAN'S LATEST TEEN BEAU

Michael Neeson

LINDSAY LOHAN is on a mission to become the youngest cougar in Hollywood at age 27 – and she's already left a string of brokenhearted young men in her wake, say insiders.

Now the out-of-control actress has set her sights on Liam Neeson's 18-year-old son Michael, and the two have been getting cozy in New York.

"LILO'S LIST OF CONQUESTS IS longer than her legal bills these days," a close pal told The ENQUIRER. "She's supposed to be taking a post-rehab break from romance, but she's got guys begging her for dates – and she's not saying no as long as they're hot and under 25.

"She's been boasting about her cougar abilities, saying she learned everything from her mom Dina."

Although reps for Lindsay and Michael denied that the two are dating, she was spotted whisking him hand-in-hand to the ladies' room for some private time at New York club Finale last month. The source says she's much more open about her toy boy lovers than her 51-year-old mom, who's been "living with a younger guy for awhile now but they only go out on the sly."

Since leaving rehab at the end of July, Lindsay's been linked to New York model Liam Dean, 19, and Ralph Lauren model Morgan O'Connor, 18. She also had a fling with former pro football hunk Matt Nordgren, but his days were numbered when she found out he was several years older than her.

Lindsay's mom, Dina Lohan

"LiLo's insatiable right now," said the insider. "She's lost ten pounds and has been showing off online with sexy selfies."

Her hot-to-trot behavior burst spectacularly into the open recently when a source says she and a young stud got booted from a New York cab in the early morning hours after steaming up the backseat with R-going-on-X-rated antics. Enraged, the driver pulled over and bellowed at them: "Get OUT! This is not a hotel room."

"LiLo's insatiable right now"

Now, an insider says that Lindsay has a new goal.

"She wants to be a better cougar than her mom, Demi Moore and Kris Jenner combined!"

OBAMA MARRI

First couple's

"I'VE had enough!"

Furious first lady Michelle Obama hurled those fighting words at her husband after he publicly humiliated her by flirting with a leggy blonde foreign leader at South African icon Nelson Mandela's memorial service, sources say.

In a bombshell world exclusive, The ENQUIRER has learned that in the wake of the mortifying incident, President Barack Obama and his wife are now sleeping in separate White House bedrooms.

Sources say an enraged Michelle is also preparing to boot her hubby of 21 years out of their ritzy Chicago home – and seriously discussing divorce.

"The smart money says the marriage is doomed," said a close source.

"Barack and Michelle have had a rocky go for years and mainly stayed together for their daughters and his political career.

"BUT NOW MICHELLE IS MAD AS hell. She feels violated in front of the whole world, and screamed at him, 'I've had enough!'

"She's met with divorce lawyers and told Barack that she wants a life apart from him."

An Oval Office insider added: "Michelle will stay in the White House for the rest of Barack's term for appearances' sake, but she made it clear they'll be leading separate lives.

"She's moving into one of the vacant bedrooms in the family's private living quarters, and she's preparing to move his clothes and personal things out of their million-dollar house in Chicago."

Sources say Michelle, 49, hit the roof after her lusty hubby was photographed brazenly flirting with Denmark's dishy female prime minister, Helle Thorning-Schmidt, during the service for former South African president Mandela.

Obama, 52, laughed and whispered with the 46-year-old Danish beauty throughout the solemn ceremony, at one point cavalierly caressing her shoulder.

The two also playfully snapped a "selfie" photograph together while Michelle shot daggers at them.

The Danish press has dubbed Thorning-Schmidt "Gucci Helle" for her love of designer clothes.

While she lives in Copenhagen, her husband resides in Davos, Switzerland, and the couple's accountant reportedly said that her husband was "gay or maybe bisexual."

Obama's outrageous antics with her made him the butt of international ridicule, with American media outlets going on the attack.

"New York Post" columnist Andrea Peyser blasted: "(Mandela) was a man who Obama compared at the memorial to Abraham Lincoln, Mahatma Gandhi and Dr. Martin Luther King. And here was the president, publicly behaving as if he was plotting his next hook-up. It was unseemly.

She meets with DIVORCE LAWYERS

"...Not to be outdone by the president's bad behavior, the Danish hellcat hiked up her skirt to expose long Scandinavian legs covered by nothing more substantial than sheer black stockings."

EVEN FAMED BODY LANGUAGE expert Dr. Lillian Glass, who evaluated the photographs at The ENQUIRER's request, was appalled at the president's behavior.

"This was clearly extremely humiliating for the first lady," Dr. Glass told The ENQUIRER.

"The president effectively ignored her and acted like he and the Danish prime minister were the only two people around. And he did this with the whole world watching.

"The photos show Michelle going through a series of emotions, ranging from shock to anger and extreme jealousy. I think there are many changes occurring in their relationship."

The president's staff was also quick to criticize his horn-dog conduct, sources say.

"Barack already had enough headaches with his public approval rating plummeting after the disastrous rollout of his 'Obamacare' health plan. Now he's walked smack into the worst marital crisis of his life," said the White House insider.

"Behind the scenes, his advisers chewed him out, saying the photographic images of his frat-boy hijinks will haunt him forever.

"On top of that, women voters have bombarded the White House with letters, phone calls and emails expressing sympathy for the first lady and anger at the president.

"Even Obama's top female advisers and friends like Valerie Jarrett were disappointed with him."

Sadly for Michelle, the spectacle in South Africa wasn't the first time the charmer-in-chief has crossed the line with other women.

As The ENQUIRER has reported,

The lightweight design with exceptional amplification power makes it a bargain for only $14.95.

It increases sound levels up to 30 times – you just choose your perfect sound volume!

The super-boost in volume makes it so easy to join conversations from a distance, enjoy nature, listen to TV and get back in the game!

Here's one U.S. company that's working overtime (and hiring!) to fulfill all the orders that are coming in from all over the U.S.! Americans of all ages are lining up to get their hands on their newly price-reduced Ear-Pro IQ – the virtually invisible Sound Amplifier with crystal clear sound!

It used to cost a fortune to get a personal sound amplifier with good sound quality. However, one company is changing that, and has turned the industry upside down with a top-of-the-line solution, for less than $15.

How can they do this.... The company explains, "Our latest sound amplification device, Ear-Pro IQ™, offers the same advanced technology as many other more expensive Sound Amplifiers, but at a price anyone can afford. We also cut out the middleman and sell directly to the consumer. We buy in large quantities and pass the savings on to the buyer." The public's response from men and women to Ear-Pro IQ has been overwhelming. "We are sometimes out of stock for a few days. We can't make them as fast as people are buying them."

The company believes the Ear-Pro IQ is highly-popular right now for 3 distinct reasons:

1) The sound quality is exceptional. That's why a person buys Ear-Pro IQ in the first place. Because they want to make hearing other people, TVs, radios etc, easier. 3) The price is absolutely astounding for the quality you get. Ear-Pro IQ supercharges your hearing – increases the weakest sound – at a super low price that anyone can afford. Ear-Pro IQ takes you from ordinary hearing to SUPER HEARING!

Those are the 3 reasons why most people upgrade to Ear-Pro IQ. But after they start using the amazing device, their life literally changes. With Ear-Pro IQ, all this becomes a reality:

They can hear everything easier... the TV, the stereo, the car radio – without turning it up and disturbing others.

They can bring it to the theater or the movies and not miss any of the action.

OBAMA MARRIAGE EXPLODES!

the first lady blew up after Barack gushed over 21-year-old Miss Israel, Yityish "Titi" Aynaw, at a state dinner held in his honor in Israel.

At the time, Barack enraged his wife by calling the exotic 5-foot-11 Miss Universe contestant "very beautiful," adding that Michelle would love to be her height.

Titi was smitten with the silver-tongued politico as well, calling him "an exciting man, a world-class hunk, charming and an extraordinary gentleman."

The president also caused a ruckus after lusting over California Attorney General Kamala Harris. At a Democratic fundraiser in early April, he unabashedly praised Harris as "by far the best looking attorney general in the country," adding: "It's true, come on."

Sources said Michelle was enraged after his remarks went viral on social media with many outlets calling them "inappropriate," "awkward" and even "sexist."

"Practically everybody on the planet saw what he did"

At one point in the memorial service, an eye-rolling Michelle, apparently having had enough, took a seat between her husband and the Danish dish (at right)

MICHELLE INTERVENES!

THE "NEW YORK DAILY NEWS" spanked Obama with the headline: "Obama drools like a fool."

Michelle also exploded after her husband's second inauguration, and feared that he had the hots for TV sexpot Kerry Washington of the ABC hit "Scandal."

White House sources told us at the time that Michelle "ripped into Barack, telling him, 'Stay away from that woman!'"

Michelle was reportedly so insecure about her husband's lust for the Hollywood hottie that she underwent a dramatic makeover so she would closely resemble Kerry.

The ENQUIRER has also reported that Michelle "banned" Kerry – who's since gotten married – from the White House because of her "flirty" relationship with the president.

In late 2012, we revealed that Michelle flew into a fury after Obama was photographed leering at Thailand's stunning prime minister, Yingluck Shinawatra.

Obama was snapped laughing and getting touchy-feely with the Asian beauty during a state dinner in Bangkok.

But the couple's fight over his behavior with the sexy Danish leader was the worst ever, "and they've had some doozies," said the White House insider.

"Rather than unloading on him in South Africa, where their privacy was not guaranteed, or on Air Force One among other high-ranking dignitaries, including George and Laura Bush and Hillary Clinton, Michelle reserved her fury until they were back in their private quarters in the White House. Then she went ballistic behind closed doors.

"BARACK HAS HUMILIATED Michelle before, but this incident was played out on the world stage. Practically everybody on the planet saw what he did and realized that the president has absolutely no respect for his wife."

Meanwhile, The ENQUIRER has learned the first couple plans to live nearly 5,000 miles apart when their days at the White House come to an end. Obama reportedly plans to settle in his native Hawaii, where his presidential library and political center will be located. Sources say he'll live with his longtime pal Bobby Titcomb, who was busted for soliciting a prostitute in 2011.

Michelle will remain in Washington, D.C., until the couple's youngest daughter Sasha, 12, finishes high school. Daughter Malia, 15, is a high school sophomore.

For now, Michelle is gearing up for a nasty divorce battle. But sources say she'll most likely wait to slap Barack with divorce papers until after he leaves the Oval Office, when he'll likely earn more than $30 million in book deals and bank $65 million in appearance fees.

"Now that Barack has embarrassed Michelle in front of the world, he's going to pay a big, big price," said the insider. "Michelle has said she wants a huge chunk of his net worth.

"This divorce is going to cost him a fortune."

Newlywed cliff murder

MONSTER BRIDE WAS SCARED OF SEX!

CODY JOHNSON was frustrated that his bride of eight days, Jordan Linn Graham, didn't want to have sex with him and was ready to leave her before she pushed him to his death at Glacier National Park in July.

That's the REAL story behind the sensational murder case that's gripped the nation – and only The ENQUIRER has the inside details.

After months of insisting that she had acted in self-defense, Jordan finally admitted in a Missoula, Mont., court on Dec. 12 that she had killed her new groom by pushing him face-first off a 200-foot cliff during a heated argument. She accepted a second-degree murder plea.

"IT WAS A RECKLESS ACT," Jordan told the judge, who demanded the truth about what happened. "I just pushed."

A source revealed to The ENQUIRER that the 22-year-old was "frightened to death" of being intimate with Cody. "The thought of having sex with her husband made her physically ill, and she would fly into a panic," the source disclosed. "It made him frustrated. Jordan believed Cody was going to want her to do all sorts of kinky things in the bedroom. She was afraid."

Kimberly Martinez, matron of honor at the couple's June 29 wedding, testified in court that Jordan texted her, saying that she knew Cody would ask her to "do stuff I'm not wanting to."

When Martinez urged her to tell her husband, Jordan replied: "I feel like it's my job to make him happy, even if I'm miserable."

Jordan also claimed that she was afraid of Cody's temper, but sources say it was she who could lash out viciously.

"Jordan made up stuff," said the source. "And if you didn't believe her, she would blow up. It was frightening."

> "She'd flipped out"

AN INSIDER SAID JORDAN WAS "on the verge of a breakdown" at the time of the murder and had even threatened to kill her mother and stepfather about five weeks before Cody's death.

"She'd flipped out," said the insider. "Jordan had begun to lose her mind. I think that she realized that Cody was fed up with her, fed up with her crazy behavior and wanted out."

Too embarrassed to admit that her marriage had failed after only eight days, Jordan devised a plan to kill Cody and try to pass it off as an accident, experts theorized. Fortunately, justice prevailed. She faces life in prison and is scheduled to be sentenced on March 27.

Ethan Couch boasted that his father gave him this ranch house

SPOILED rich kid Ethan Couch, who killed four people and injured nine in a horrific car crash late last spring, is a bratty party monster who threw wild, booze-fueled bashes at his own pad in suburban Fort Worth, Texas – even though he's just 16!

Couch reportedly boasted that his filthy-rich father Fred had given him a sprawling ranch house where he was allowed to live alone. Pals say the out-of-control teen spent his days playing video games and his nights throwing vodka and beer-soaked parties.

It was after one such bash on June 15 that the heavily inebriated kid took off in an enormous Ford F-350 pickup truck owned by his dad's multimillion-dollar sheet metal company. Going 70 mph in a 40 mph zone, Couch plowed into several people and cars parked alongside the roadway. Despite the carnage he'd caused, Couch was said to be belligerent and uncooperative at the scene and reportedly huffed: "I'm outta here," before walking away.

PROSECUTORS CALLED FOR COUCH – who had a blood-alcohol content three times the legal limit for adults in Texas – to spend 20 years in prison. And a firestorm of protest erupted when he got away with a slap on the wrist. Now it looks as if his "punishment" will be little more than in-patient treatment at a posh $450,000-a-year rehab center in tony Newport Beach, Calif., which offers gourmet meals, yoga, mixed martial arts and "equine-assisted" therapy!

"It sounds more like a nice vacation than an actual sentence," former Denver Chief Deputy District Attorney Craig Silverman told The ENQUIRER. Incredibly, Couch may have gotten off easy simply because he's been so spoiled! A psychologist hired by his defense team argued to the court that Couch was a victim of "affluenza," a psychological condi-

Those killed in the horrific crash were mother and daughter, Hollie, 52, and Shelby, 21; Breanna Mitchell, 24, and youth minister Brian Jennings. Below, Couch's crushed vehicle tion caused by his wealthy parents. Because they enabled him to do whatever he wanted, the theory goes that he never learned there were consequences for his bad behavior. And despite the fact that Couch already had a history of alcohol-related offenses before the crash, Texas State District judge Jean Boyd sentenced him to just the therapy and 10 years' probation.

Needless to say, the families of his victims were outraged by the Dec. 10 sentence.

Eric Boyles, who lost his wife Hollie, 52, and daughter Shelby, 21, told a reporter: "Ultimately today, I felt that money did prevail."

And Marla Mitchell, whose daughter Breanna, 24, was among those killed, said about Couch: "He has not escaped judgment. That is in the hands of a higher power."

Youth minister Brian Jennings also lost his life in the accident.

Meanwhile, former DA Silverman called the sentencing a "travesty of justice" and a "mockery of the criminal justice system."

"It's a slap in the face to memories of those who were killed, not to mention those who are still alive but grievously injured," Silverman continued. "His family may be rich, but that's not an excuse. It diminishes the value of human life for him to spend zero time behind bars."

Jennifer has raved about her sizzling chemistry with Ryan Guzman, says an insider

J.LO EYES NEW BOY TOY

JENNIFER LOPEZ's much-younger beau, Casper Smart, is terrified that he's about to get dumped for another handsome young stud, says a source.

Former Calvin Klein model Ryan Guzman, 26, was recently cast as J.Lo's teenage boyfriend in her upcoming flick, "The Boy Next Door." And Casper, who's also 26, fears that the 44-year-old Latin spitfire will trade him in for a new boy toy, the source adds.

"CASPER IS THREATENED BY Ryan," disclosed an insider. "Ryan is hot, ambitious and a real charmer. Casper felt like yesterday's news when Jennifer came home giddy and announced that Ryan landed the coveted role opposite her.

"She raved about Ryan's talent, about what a bright career he has in front of him, and about the sizzling chemistry they generated during Ryan's audition."

Meanwhile, Casper's role in Jen's life seems to have devolved from ever-present arm candy to glorified 'manny.'

"He runs her errands, grocery shops, picks her kids up from school and prepares meals at home," explained the source. "Casper doesn't think he stands a chance once Jen and Ryan start filming their red-hot love scenes."

Casper, who met Jennifer when he worked as one of her backup dancers, "knows better than anyone that Jen has a weakness for handsome young men she works with," the source added.

The ENQUIRER has learned that Ryan, like Casper, has a bit of a sketchy past. He was busted for DUI in April 2011 in his hometown of Sacramento, Calif., while Casper has had multiple brushes with the law.

"Jen has a soft spot for bad boys," the source continued. "But she's also traditional and wants a strong man with his own identity. Jen complains that Casper isn't ambitious. And she's been bragging that Ryan's go-getter attitude is a huge turn on. Jen is ready to upgrade her boyfriend – and Ryan looks like a perfect candidate."

TALK about high maintenance!

Friends and family are pushing child star-turned-fashion mogul Mary-Kate Olsen to get a $500 million prenuptial agreement before she waltzes down the aisle with French-born investment banker Olivier Sarkozy.

Rumors flew that Mary-Kate and Olivier were already in a trial marriage when she was snapped sporting a band on her ring finger on Dec. 12.

And pint-size Mary-Kate, 27, was spotted shopping for a large engagement ring at the Neil Lane boutique in Los Angeles. She's said to have her heart set on a huge sparkler.

"All of the rings she looked at are over five carats," a source told a reporter.

ALTHOUGH THE BLING COULD SET 44-year-old Sarkozy back a staggering $100,000, that's nothing compared to the gigantic sums that would be protected by a prenup.

Celebrity divorce attorney Raoul Felder told The ENQUIRER: "She's worth a bundle and he's got money, too.

"So this would be like two corporations merging – which is Sarkozy's specialty.

"The prenuptial agreement would be worth, as the French might say, beaucoup bucks!"

Sarkozy – half-brother of former French president Nicholas Sarkozy – is worth at least $60 million and knows how to protect it. The father of two is already battle-tested after undergoing a bitter divorce from his ex-wife, writer Charlotte Bernard.

Meanwhile, in November 2009, The ENQUIRER disclosed that Mary-Kate – who reportedly is eager to have a baby – was looking to protect the $900 million fortune she and her twin Ashley have amassed through their fashion and entertainment empire while pondering marriage to her then-boyfriend, artist Nate Lowman.

Predicted Felder: "A new agreement (between Mary-Kate and Olivier) could be the mom and pop of all prenuptials!"

JODIE FOSTER's new love affair is already in deep trouble – because her jealous girlfriend Alexandra Hedison is demanding that the Oscar winner cut ties with her ex.

BUT JODIE REFUSES to back down. Her life remains intertwined with her ex-lover Cydney Bernard, and she told "The L Word" actress Alexandra to get used to it or hit the road, according to a source.

"The honeymoon is over for Jodie and Alex," declared an insider. The two are butting heads because Jodie and Cydney – who are raising two sons together, Charles, 15, and Kit, 12 – remain extremely close. Just recently, Jodie was photographed helping Cydney move furniture in Santa Monica.

"Jodie and Cydney talk daily and see each other several times a week," said the source. "They've gone from lovers to best friends, and

The two women met on the set of the 1993 movie "Sommersby" and spent 15 years together before their 2008 split. But Jodie, 51, still goes out of her way to praise Cydney, 60, including gushing that she remains her "heroic co-parent, ex-partner in love but righteous soul sister in life" at last January's Golden Globe Awards.

Sadly, Alexandra, the 44-year-old ex-girlfriend of Ellen DeGeneres, is having trouble adapting to Jodie's divided attention. "Alex hit the roof after she recently walked in on Jodie and heard her end a phone call with Cydney by saying, 'I love you, too,'" confided the source.

"Alex grilled Jodie, demanding to know if she was cheating on her with Cydney.

"Jodie was appalled. She told Alex to butt out of her family affairs. She and Cydney talk about everything from their sons' schoolwork to what's going on in each other's love lives, but they are totally platonic.

"Still, the close relationship unnerves Alex. She worries constantly that Jodie is going to dump her and reunite with Cydney."

BILLY GRAHAM'S FINAL JOUR

"OUR love will be reunited soon in heaven."

With those touching words, ailing evangelist Billy Graham whispered a final farewell to his beloved wife Ruth at her graveside.

The ENQUIRER has learned the world-famous 95-year-old preacher made the emotional private visit shortly before his eldest son and heir apparent asked for prayers for his father.

"Our family would appreciate your prayers for him that the Lord would strengthen him," said the Rev. Franklin Graham, 61, who now heads the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association.

Billy's son, the Rev. Franklin Graham

Franklin described his father as "extremely weak," and close sources say family members had accepted the fact that the much-admired preacher was facing his last days.

"Billy has valiantly lived to a ripe old age, but he knows that God is ready to call him home, and the family is preparing for the end," revealed a close source.

"HE'S SAID, 'I'M READY TO meet my maker.'"

"Billy recently asked to be taken to Ruth's grave before the weather became too cold. Then he asked for some time alone so he could pray for her. He often talks about the wonderful reunion they'll have in heaven."

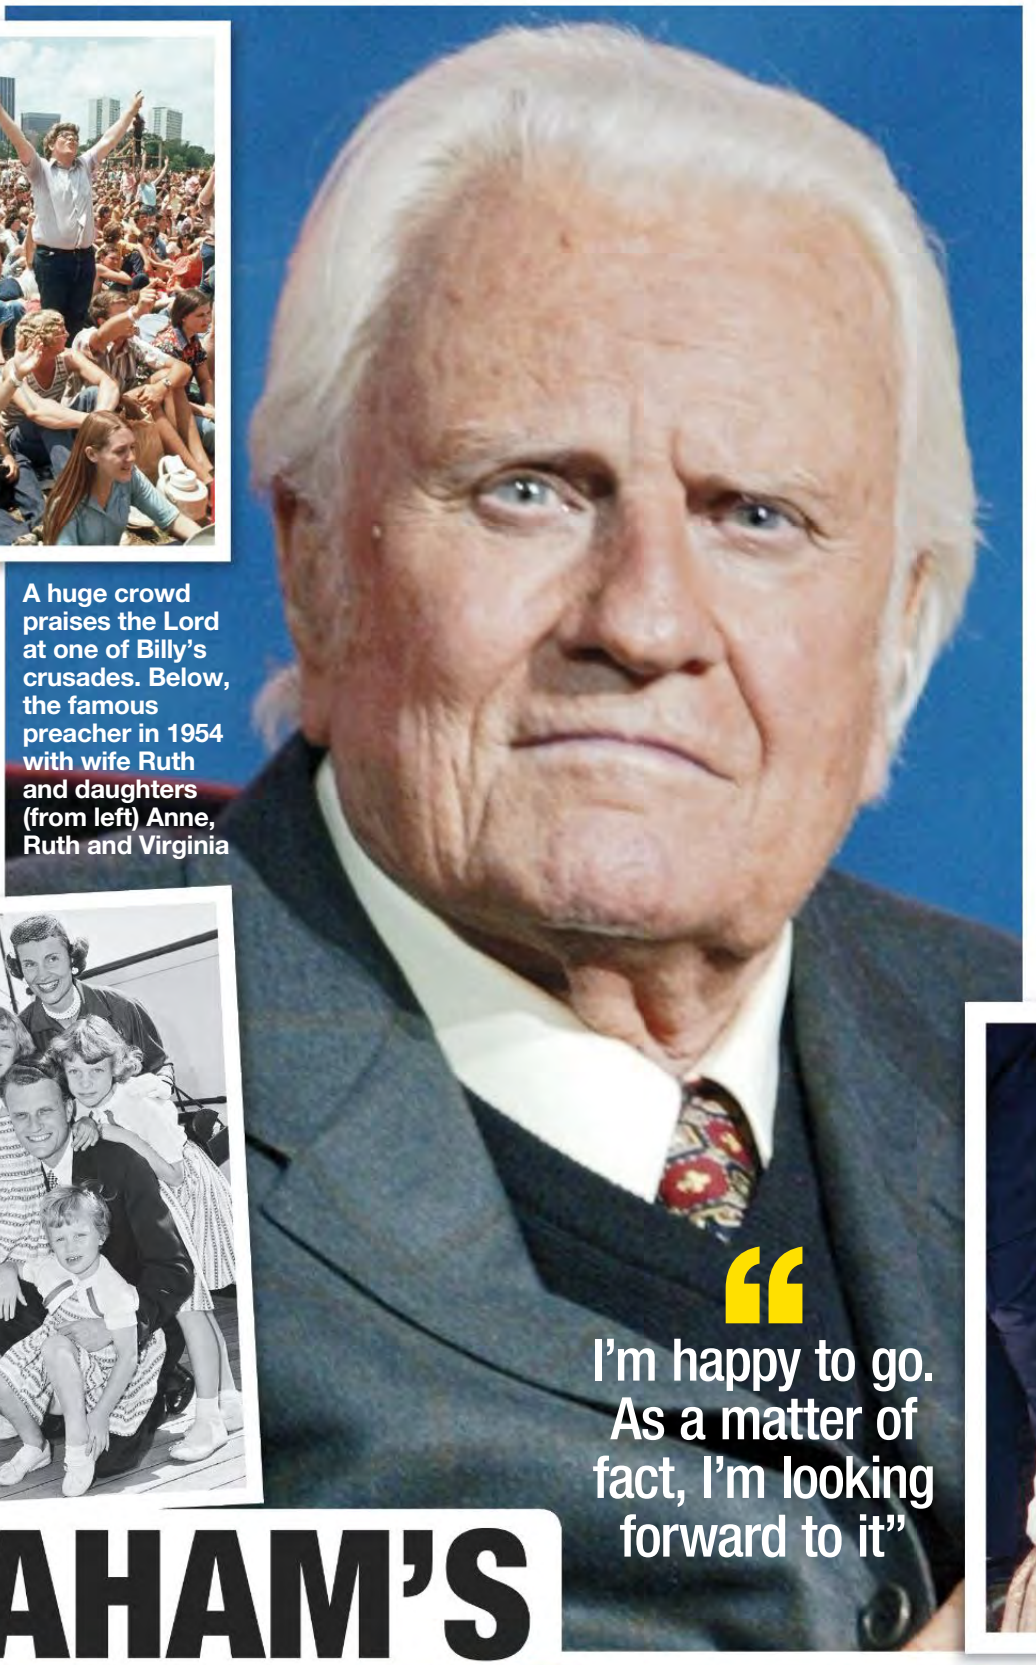
A huge crowd praises the Lord at one of Billy's crusades. Below, the famous preacher in 1954 with wife Ruth and daughters (from left) Anne, Ruth and Virginia

Ruth passed away at age 87 in June 2007 after 63 years of marriage.

"When Ruth passed, it was as if half of Billy died," said the source. "They were two parts of a whole."

The Rev. Graham will be buried next to Ruth on the grounds of his library in Charlotte, N.C. He'll be laid to rest in a $215 birch plywood coffin built by inmates at the Louisiana State Penitentiary in Angola, said the source.

"Billy's son Franklin made the request after seeing the coffins during



"I'm happy to go. As a matter of fact, I'm looking forward to it" a visit to the prison and being struck by their simplicity," said the source.

The Rev. Graham made a brief appearance at his star-studded 95th birthday celebration on Nov. 7. He was hospitalized two weeks later for observation and tests, then released, but he was weakened by a respiratory infection.

He's been confined to a wheelchair for several years and is nearly blind due to age-related macular degeneration. He's also suffered from Parkinson's disease and battled prostate cancer. Over the past few years, he's endured other health-related issues, including hip replacement, pneumonia and crippling falls.

FOR NOW, THE REV. GRAHAM – who has preached to 2.2 billion people around the world and been a confidante of every president since Harry Truman – is comfortable at his mountaintop home in Montreat, N.C.

"Billy wanted to be home surrounded by family, not in a hospital bed, and his final days have been filled with joy," said the source.

"Besides praying for his reunion with his beloved wife, Billy was thankful that he was able to deliver a videotaped sermon, titled 'My Hope America,' at his birthday party.

"At this stage Billy has nothing else to live for. He can no longer deliver sermons as his voice has been weakened to a whisper by the ravages of old age. And with Franklin at the helm, he's established a line of succession to carry on the family ministry.

"He feels the time has come for him to say goodbye to his family and close friends, and move from his worldly life to the afterlife.

"Billy's been so blessed, and he's not afraid of dying. He's said, 'I'm happy to go. I'm ready to go. As a matter of fact, I'm looking forward to it.'"

IN HIS OWN WORDS

The Rev. Graham's inspiring messages

FOR more than 40 years, the beloved Rev. Billy Graham has provided exclusive inspirational messages to ENQUIRER readers, and as his long ministry draws to a close, he shared some special final thoughts:

"I see how God's hand has guided me. Our country is in great need of a spiritual awakening. I've gone from city to city, and I've seen how far people have wandered from God. Of all the things I've seen and heard, there's only one message that can change people's lives and hearts. With all my heart I want to leave you with the truth: God loves you. Today, I'm asking you to put your trust in God. Amen."

In the past, the Rev. Graham has offered ENQUIRER readers advice on a variety of subjects:

MEDITATION: "Meditation is brought up continually in the Bible as one of the most powerful forces in the world – if used correctly! If a person meditates without religious content – leaving himself with an empty and susceptible mind – there is a grave danger that satanic influences will take over."

IMMORTALITY: "Eternal life is available to everyone. It's something we should all look forward to with joy and anticipation. Without hesitation, I can assure you there is life after death."

GREED: "In a world of greed, our greatest need is moral integrity. I urge every American – don't get caught up in the snowballing of greed."

THE EVILS OF HOLLYWOOD: "Stay away from the movie 'The Exorcist.' Anyone who exposes himself to the Devil, even in a movie, is exposing himself to real danger."

HIS BLINDNESS: "I miss not being able to pick up a newspaper or my Bible and read the way I once could. But instead of focusing on what I can't do, I try to focus on what I still can do."

PREGNANT KELLY'S MARRIAGE IN TURMOIL

– and Blake Shelton's caught in the middle

Blake is a major partier and womanizer, says an insider

MOM-TO-BE Kelly Clarkson is blaming wild womanizer Blake Shelton for a bimbo eruption that's caused her new hubby Brandon Blackstock to be branded a serial cheater!

Sources say the crisis has thrown Kelly's months-old marriage into turmoil, and the "Stronger" singer has turned to her stepmother-in-law, country music legend Reba McEntire, for advice.

"Kelly can't believe that Brandon is cheating, but she knows Blake is a major partier and womanizer," said an insider.

"Brandon is Blake's manager, and now that she and Brandon are starting a family, Kelly doesn't think it's a good idea for him to be hanging out with Blake."

The "Voice" mentor, who was ordained through an online ministry, was set to officiate at the couple's marriage ceremony. But Kelly, 31, and Brandon, who turns 37 this month, decided to elope instead, and tied the knot on Oct. 20. As The ENQUIRER recently reported, the couple has moved into an opulent $2.86 million mansion in Henderson, Tenn.

BUT NOW KELLY'S WORRIED that Blake's partying – which has triggered problems with wife Miranda Lambert – could cause the same troubles in her marriage, sources say.

As The ENQUIRER has reported, pals say Blake and Miranda's three-year union is headed for divorce after being repeatedly rocked by allegations of Blake's wandering eye.

Desperate to avoid the same heartache, Kelly sought the advice of Brandon's stepmother, country queen Reba McEntire, said another source.

"Kelly is terrified that Blake might corrupt Brandon," said the source.

"Reba didn't want to believe Brandon would even look at another woman, but she advised Kelly to read him the riot act right now."

For Kelly, red flags went up when an unidentified woman told a website she'd been involved with Brandon, who has two kids with his ex-wife.

Miranda Lambert's marriage to Blake is in trouble, according to pals

"Brandon has been cheating on Kelly (with me) for the past 5 months," the woman wrote on Dec. 2.

"We met at a golf club in TN and have exchanged multiple texts and hung out a few times over the last little while. We haven't slept together but we've been intimate in other ways."

Then, a second woman claimed she's expecting Brandon's child after they hooked up when he was with Blake in L.A.

Kelly blasted the claims as "false rumors" and "absolutely absurd" on her Twitter feed, explaining that the woman who posted "this fictitious rumor about my husband" used to be her personal assistant until "I terminated her for trying to steal from me."

But behind the scenes a furious Kelly – who performed live on "The Voice" on Dec. 3 despite suffering morning sickness – is blaming Blake for dragging Brandon into his sexually charged lifestyle.

"Kelly has laid down the law and told Brandon to cool it with Blake," said the insider. "From now on, he's on a short leash."

Mom of Charles Manson's bride issues warning to monster

STAY AWAY FROM MY DAUGHTER!

THE woman who shocked the world by announcing her plans to wed "Helter Skelter" monster Charles Manson flat-out lied about her parents welcoming the murderous fiend into their family!

"My parents like Charlie," Manson's bride-to-be – a 25-year-old groupie nicknamed Star by the evil killer – said recently. "They said, 'If Charlie gets out (of prison), you guys can stay here.'"

But in a bombshell ENQUIRER interview, Star's mother claims she definitely doesn't want Manson as a son-in-law.

AND SHE'S HORRIFIED that her daughter – whose real name is Afton Burton – has hooked up with the infamous 79-year-old psycho.

"We would not let Charles Manson into our home!" a distraught Melissa Burton – also speaking for her husband Nolan – told The ENQUIRER.

"We do not approve. We would rather she not be involved with him."

Manson is serving a life sentence at California's Corcoran State Prison for his role in the brutal 1969 murders of movie director Roman Polanski's actress-wife Sharon Tate and Los Angeles residents Rosemary and Leno LaBianca.

When Star was 19, she moved near the maximum-security prison so she could be close to her evil boyfriend

Afton Burton was in high school when she began writing Manson, who nicknamed her Star. At right, she bears the "X" of Manson followers

In a blockbuster interview with "Rolling Stone" magazine, Star claimed she began writing to Manson while she was in high school, and at 19, she used $2,000 in savings to move near the maximum-security prison so she could be close to him.

She also said that she fled to California after her parents locked her in her bedroom when she refused to attend church and began taking drugs.

After the interview made worldwide headlines, The ENQUIRER discovered Star's true identity, and tracked down her family in Bunker Hill, Ill., a suburb of St. Louis, Mo.

Her mother angrily disputed Star's claims.

"We did not lock my daughter in a room!" Melissa told The ENQUIRER.

"We are very upset by these statements. She has a loving family. We have a good relationship and she had a caring upbringing."

While prison regulations allow Manson to marry, conjugal visits for inmates serving a life sentence are forbidden. But as The ENQUIRER has reported, a source claims Star – who marked her forehead with an "X" as Charlie's followers did – would like to bear his child. And it's possible fiendish Manson could find a way to impregnate her.

STAR ALSO SAID: "PEOPLE can think I'm crazy, but they don't know me. This is what's right for me. This is what I was born for...I'll tell you straight up, Charlie and I are going to get married. When that will be, we don't know. But I take it very seriously. Charlie is my husband."

> "I ask her to come home every day...she is being misled"

Yet the prospect of Manson as her son-in-law horrifies Star's mom.

"I ask my daughter to come home every day," Melissa said. "It's my belief that she is being misled. But she's a grown woman, and I can't stop her."

Ashlee & Jessica WEDDING WAR!

JESSICA SIMPSON and her sister Ashlee are locked in a wedding showdown!

Big sis Jess – who's planning to tie the knot with fiance Eric Johnson in a splashy affair this spring – is furious that Ashlee is racing to the altar with boyfriend Evan Ross after only a few months of dating. And she's convinced that Ashlee is more interested in playing a game of one-upmanship than actually getting hitched!

The wedding war erupted after Evan, the 25-year-old son of Motown legend Diana Ross, told a reporter: "I'm so in love (with Ashlee) and we've got amazing things going on. Yeah, she's the one."

Jessica and baby daddy Eric Johnson – shown here with their daughter Maxwell – plan to wed this spring

WHEN ASKED IF marriage was in their future, Evan replied: "For sure."

Meanwhile, Jessica, 33, and Eric, 34 – parents to 19-month-old daughter Maxwell and 5-month-old son Ace – traveled to Italy in October to scout venues for their planned nuptials.

"As soon as Jessica tipped her family off that she and Eric finally carved out some time to marry this spring, Ashlee started planning her own wedding," said a source. "Ashlee wants to stage a winter wonderland-themed extravaganza at her Los Angeles home early in the year."

Jessica doesn't think the timing is a coincidence.

"Ashlee has always played follow the leader with Jessica," the source explained. "When Jessica went on reality TV, Ashlee followed. Ashlee even dyed her hair blonde and softened her style from punk to more feminine to look more like Jessica."

While Ashlee, 29, may win the race down the aisle, she stands to lose a whole lot more.

"Jessica feels betrayed," the source added. "She's not going to forget it."

Simon and fiancee Lauren Silverman will include Mezhgan, Sinitta and Terri in the wedding

SIMON'S EX-FACTOR NUPTIALS

THE exes are being factored into "X Factor" judge Simon Cowell's wedding!

Once-confirmed bachelor Cowell, 54, and baby mama Lauren Silverman, 36, are secretly planning to wed over the holidays, said a source, and he's insisting his former girlfriends be included.

"Simon has told Lauren that his exes will always be a part of his life," said the source.

Now he wants his former fiancee, makeup artist Mezhgan Hussainy, as well as longtime galpals, "Extra" correspondent Terri Seymour and singer Sinitta, to be bridesmaids at the bash, continued the source, "and Lauren seems to be fine with that."

Lauren has apparently become close friends with Terri and Mezhgan, and both brought gifts to her English tea party baby shower at Simon's Beverly Hills home in early December.

The showbiz mogul proposed after the shower, and now the couple is arranging their nuptials, according to the source.

"They're planning an intimate ceremony with a yacht reception in Barbados between Christmas and New Year's," disclosed the source.

"SIMON WANTS TO BE MARRIED by the time Lauren delivers the baby – a boy he's already referring to as Simon Jr. – in February."

Cowell seemed like the world's biggest cad when Lauren's husband filed for divorce in July and it was revealed that Lauren was carrying the TV mogul's baby.

But Lauren is now divorced, "and Simon has been strictly honorable with her," said the source.

"He's been at her side for the past several months, bonded with her father, thrown her a shower and quietly put a ring on her finger.

"Now it's on to the wedding – with Simon's exes in tow!"

Teri Hatcher's HUNGRY FOR LOVE

Single mom hopes cooking lessons will land her a man

TERI HATCHER is so "desperate" to be a housewife, she's trying to cook up a romance by enrolling in chef's school – hoping new skillet skills will serve up Mr. Right.

The 49-year-old actress – best known as the culinary-challenged Susan Mayer-Delfino on ABC's "Desperate Housewives" – believes that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach.

"Teri really wants a man in her life right now, but she doesn't want to date casually – she wants a husband!" revealed a family friend.

Earlier this year, twice-divorced Teri, who has a 16-year-old daughter, enrolled in cooking school Le Cordon Bleu in Pasadena, Calif.

Then, to make sure she had all the right ingredients to hook a guy, Teri decided to test herself by competing on the celebrity edition of the Food Network's "Chopped."

The show challenged her ability not only to whip up tasty dishes, but to work quickly and use unusual ingredients.

Although she got off to a nervous start, the pretty actress ended up beating comedian Anthony Anderson, hunky Antonio Sabato Jr. and Dawn Wells, who played Mary Ann on the classic sitcom "Gilligan's Island."

THE GENEROUS STAR DONATED her $10,000 grand prize to her favorite charity, the Juvenile Arthritis Association.

"Teri says she's sacrificed a lot over the years and doesn't have any regrets, but it's time for her to find her 'happily ever after' with the man of her dreams," said the source. "And now she can make certain her new husband will want to stay home and 'cook' with her."

'HOUSEWIVES' DESPERATE FOR ATTENTION!

Stars' antics WRECKING PLANS FOR REUNION

TOP secret plans to revive "Desperate Housewives" for a reunion special are turning into a nightmare!

The script is still being written, but the ABC hit's leading ladies – Eva Longoria, Teri Hatcher, Felicity Huffman and Marcia Cross – are already battling for face time, says a source.

Now, stressed-out producer Marc Cherry is struggling to keep them all happy.

Producer Marc Cherry

"ALL FOUR ACTRESSES ARE scrambling for top billing, which is exactly what happened when the show originally aired," explained the source, adding that a fifth star, Nicollette Sheridan, has been a persona non grata since she leveled an ultimately unsuccessful $20 million assault lawsuit against Cherry and ABC in 2005.

"Keeping those women on a level playing field nearly sent Marc into cardiac arrest then, and now it's even worse!"

Plans call for the reunion episode to take place 10 years in the future, after a fire destroys most of the homes on Wisteria Lane, revealed the source.

"The fire uncovers a bunker filled with secrets, and everyone is required to come back and face police questioning," continued the insider.

"The four actresses really want – and need – this special to happen, but their insecurities are going to bite them in the butt if they're not careful.

"They're already asking who'll get the biggest scenes, the most face time, the best lines – even which one of them will be in front on the first promo poster, but the project is nowhere near that stage yet."

Teri, Felicity and Marcia also fear Eva's close relationship with producer Cherry means she'll get favorable treatment, according to the source.

"They're stonewalling until they know exactly who's getting which story line, even though the script's first draft hasn't even been completed," noted the source.

"It's driving everyone crazy, especially Marc, who's beginning to remember why he vowed to never touch the series again."

YOUR HEALTH by LISETTE HILTON & LAURIE MILLER

A small study from Japan found that caffeinated coffee drinkers' small vessel blood flow increased 30 percent compared to those who drank decaffeinated coffee.

"This gives us a clue about how coffee may help improve cardiovascular health," says Dr. Masato Tsutsui of Japan's University of the Ryukyus. "If we know how the positive effects of coffee work, it could lead to a new treatment strategy for cardiovascular disease in the future."

COFFEE IMPROVES HEART HEALTH

Obesity may be HARD ON YOUR EARS

Listen up: Being obese may be linked to hearing-loss risk among women, say experts.

Analyzing data from more than 68,000 women, researchers found that those who were obese – especially around the waist – had a 17 to 25 percent higher risk of hearing loss than normal-weight women.

On the other hand, women who were more physically active had a 17 percent lower hearing loss risk than women who were the least active, according to a study from researchers at Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital.

"We often think of hearing loss as an inevitable part of the aging process, but these findings provide evidence that potentially modifiable risk factors, such as maintaining a healthy weight and staying physically active, may help in the prevention of hearing loss or delay its progression," says Dr. Sharon Curhan.

Potential MS BREAKTHROUGH

A tuberculosis vaccine might help prevent multiple sclerosis in people just beginning to show signs of the disease, according to a new study from Italy's University of Rome.

Researchers enlisted 73 people who had early signs of MS. Nearly half of them received an injection of Bacille Calmette-Guerin – a vaccine used outside the U.S. to prevent TB – the other group received a placebo.

After five years, 58 percent of those vaccinated had not developed MS, compared to 30 percent of those not vaccinated.

Experts are encouraged but say further research is required.

Sugary CANCER RISK

Postmenopausal women who drank sugar-sweetened beverages increased their chances of endometrial cancer, suggests a new study.

And the more sugary drinks they consumed, the higher their risks! Researchers from the University of Minnesota School of Public Health discovered that postmenopausal women who reported the highest intake of sugar-sweetened beverages were 78 percent more likely to develop the most common type of endometrial cancer.

Cautions researcher Maki Inoue-Choi: "Too much added sugar can boost a person's overall calorie intake and may increase the risk of health conditions such as obesity, diabetes, heart disease and cancer."

Veggies IMPROVE cholesterol

Genetically engineered tomatoes could be a great way to lower cholesterol.

Early research by UCLA scientists shows that peptides (certain protein molecules) can prevent an increase in LDL, the so-called bad cholesterol produced in the small intestine.

The experts achieved promising results when they fed mice peptide-enhanced tomatoes. Ultimately, the researchers hope to use the approach to help cut down on heart attacks and strokes.

Earl Woods Jr. faces up to six months in prison

Tiger Woods BROTHER BUSTED – for making a BOMB THREAT!

And you WON'T BELIEVE why cheating golfer is furious...

LEGENDARY golfer and skirt-chaser Tiger Woods is furious that his half brother Earl got busted for phoning in a bomb threat – because Tiger's afraid it will make HIM look bad!

"Tiger's all about Tiger," a close source told The ENQUIRER. "He really doesn't care about what happens to Earl, but he's worried that it will hurt his image.

"He said, 'Why would Earl do something stupid like that? It's going to make the whole family look like criminals.'

"When it comes to his half siblings, Tiger is as cold as ice."

Authorities say that burly, bearded Earl Dennison Woods Jr., named after Tiger's father, allegedly used a cell phone at 8:30 a.m. on Dec. 12 to call in a bomb threat that triggered a terrifying evacuation at his workplace, the Arizona Department of Economic Security in Phoenix.

MORE THAN 100 FRIGHTENED PEOPLE scrambled out of the facility in fear for their lives. But after 58-year-old Earl turned himself in, he told a reporter: "It was a joke, man. I was joking with co-workers."

Phoenix cops didn't think it was funny – they charged Earl with one count of misdemeanor use of an electronic device to threaten, terrify or harass. He was released after a brief stay in the Maricopa County Jail, but if convicted he could face up to six months in jail.

Tiger's mom Kultilda

Since Tiger's dad died in 2006, the golf great has had little to do with his two half brothers, Earl Jr. and Kevin, and his half sister, Royce, who were products of Earl Sr.'s first marriage to Barbara Gray.

To make matters worse, said the source, "the family turned their back on Tiger" after The ENQUIRER revealed his affair with New York party girl Rachel Uchitel in 2009, which led to his divorce.

Tiger's dad, who had called the shots for the family, met his second wife Kultilda Punsawad when he was stationed in Thailand with the Army in 1966. She gave birth to Tiger in 1975.

As he grew, Tiger repeatedly butted horns with Earl Jr., who developed a deep dislike for the superstar. He's blasted Tiger in the past over his refusal to help brother Kevin, who has multiple sclerosis and is confined to a wheelchair.

"I'd like to slap Tiger, wake him up," Earl once fumed. "I'd like to say, 'Don't come knocking on the door when you need a bone marrow transplant!'"

Can Kim put this hillbilly in heels, train her and get her into her very first pageant in just a few days? The energy is high, the drama is big and the surprises never stop coming in this informative, funny and very entertaining docuseries.

Community (Season Premiere)

Thursday, Jan. 2, 8 p.m. ET, NBC

Season 5 of this hilarious collegiate comedy kicks off tonight with back-to-back episodes. When a bridge collapses, Greendale is ripe for a huge lawsuit for graduating the unqualified engineer who built it. And the prosecutor is none other than recent graduate Jeff Winger (Joel McHale). But when he goes back to coerce his old study group to help him sue the school, he teams up with them to save Greendale instead. In the second episode, Jeff takes a teaching position at Greendale and tough-as-nails Prof. Hickey (recurring guest star Jonathan Banks, "Breaking Bad") introduces him to a literally intoxicating world of teacher privileges as this smart and funny sitcom returns.

Sexy Jenny's A BIG TURN-OFF!

Sherri thinks 'View' rival's TOO RACY

SHERRI SHEPHERD is secretly seething about her sexy new "View" co-star Jenny McCarthy – fearing she's turning off viewers with her bawdy humor and wild lifestyle.

What's more, Sherri, 46, feels former "Playboy" beauty McCarthy – who joined the ABC morning chatfest in September – is a poor replacement for her old pal Elisabeth Hasselbeck, say insiders.

Elisabeth Hasselbeck

"SHERRI AND JENNY are like oil and water," revealed a source. "They don't mix. Sherri thinks Jenny's bawdiness is a bit too much.

"They make nice for the cameras, but they just don't see eye to eye on many issues, like Sherri and Elisabeth did."

At first, Sherri welcomed the 41-year-old sex symbol with open arms, quipping to Jay Leno: "I'm looking to have a cohort in crime."

But the source noted that Sherri's never gotten over the departure of Hasselbeck, who served as a bridesmaid in her much-publicized 2011 wedding to TV writer Lamar Sally.

"Hasselbeck was Sherri's closest confidante on the program," divulged an insider.

Recently, "The View" has had to deny reports claiming that show founder Barbara Walters and her colleagues are disappointed with McCarthy. Reportedly, Barbara was incensed over seemingly anti-Semitic remarks Jenny made, interviews she gave about oral sex and comments she made slamming the Pope. Meanwhile, Sherri may be nearing the end of her rope.

"Sherri always said she would stay on 'The View' as long as it was fun," noted the insider, "but the show isn't the same for her any longer." Ratings have been mixed this season with just over three million viewers, and Sherri has been eyeing a bigger career in acting, revealed the insider. "She's thinking it may be time for her to go."

Cheers for Robin

Regarding "Robin Roberts Getting Robbed!" (Nov. 25): I totally agree. Robin is a great morning co-anchor. "Today's" Matt Lauer doesn't measure up to her. She has charisma and a great personality, while Matt is dull and boring. Robin has made "Good Morning America" what it is today.

Normal, not cheap

Shame on The ENQUIRER for calling Daniel Day-Lewis a cheapskate. He's living a normal life, not an ostentatious one. His kids are learning valuable lessons by not expecting meals on a silver platter (Daniel Day-Lewis is a Cheapskate!, Nov. 25).

Face up to reality, ladies

Most male stars, as they age, relax and let themselves go. The females turn to plastic surgery (Celebrity Body Disasters, Dec. 2). Sorry, ladies, most of these surgeons did a number on you! Instead of an attractive face, you are sporting a mask. Please don't fool with Mother Nature.

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down. In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

BINDI'S GOT A BOYFRIEND!

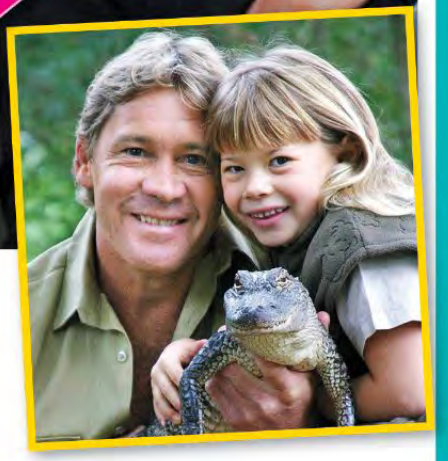
PUPPY LOVE for 'Croc Hunter's' girl, 15



BINDI IRWIN is only 15, but she's already found the boy of her dreams – and she thinks her late dad would approve.

The dimpled daughter of "Crocodile Hunter" Steve Irwin – who died in a freak diving accident with a stingray in 2006 when Bindi was just 8 – has fallen for Bailey "Bazz" Lancaster, a student from Queensland, Australia. The two have reportedly been dating since September.

"BINDI IS STILL VERY ATTACHED to the memory of her pop," said a source. "She still talks to him sometimes. Bindi said, 'Dad, I just know you'd love Bazz. He treats me nice and I like him a lot. You would, too!' "

Her mom Terri already seems to approve – and she's even been photographed with Bazz's dad Steve in Noosa, Australia.

Bazz, a rough-and-tumble skateboarder and hockey player, has been quick to stake his claim to Bindi in front of her 46,000 Instagram followers. In late September, he posted on the social networking website: "Mine. Back off boys. Getting pretty (jealous)" under a photo of his young lady love.

Back in March, a blossoming Bindi admitted that she got close to her onscreen love interest, Toby Wallace, during the making of their film, "Return to Nim's Island," but said the romance was only for the cameras. At the time, the then-14-year-old insisted she was still too young to have a boyfriend.

"I'm not at that age where I'm even thinking about (boyfriends), not until I'm at least 15," she stated.

Bindi turned 15 in July – and it looks like things have changed!

ANGELINA JOLIE clobbered fiance Brad Pitt with the ultimate 50th birthday gift – a framed autographed poster of boxing great Mike Tyson.

It was a shot right between the eyes for Brad, who had a near-knockout encounter with the former heavyweight champ more than 25 years ago when they were both romantically involved with gorgeous "Head of the Class" actress Robin Givens.

In his autobiography, "Undisputed Truth," Tyson says he was once waiting to have a tryst with his then-estranged wife Robin when she pulled up in a BMW and Brad stepped out of the passenger seat "looking stoned out of his mind."

Mike reportedly threatened to put out a hit on Brad's life! But Tyson swears there are no hard feelings. And when Angelina, 38, made a personal appeal to him for the signed poster, "he couldn't have been nicer to her," said the source. "He wrote: 'Yo Brad! Still love your taste in women. Happy 50th Dude. Best Wishes, Mike.' "

As The ENQUIRER has previously reported, the retired fighter, 47, is now pursuing a career in acting.

Robin Givens

"GETTING A CALL FOR a small favor from Angelina Jolie – one of the world's biggest movie stars – certainly was no imposition to Mike," the source continued. "He's well aware of the Hollywood favor bank and knows Angie and Brad both could do wonders to further his career."

Tyson even called Brad, who hit 50 on Dec. 18, to wish him a happy birthday. As for the poster, it's hanging in Brad's gym.

"Brad and Angie are so grateful," said the source, "they've added Mike's name to their wedding guest list."

Acts of kindness

CHRISTMAS ANGEL!

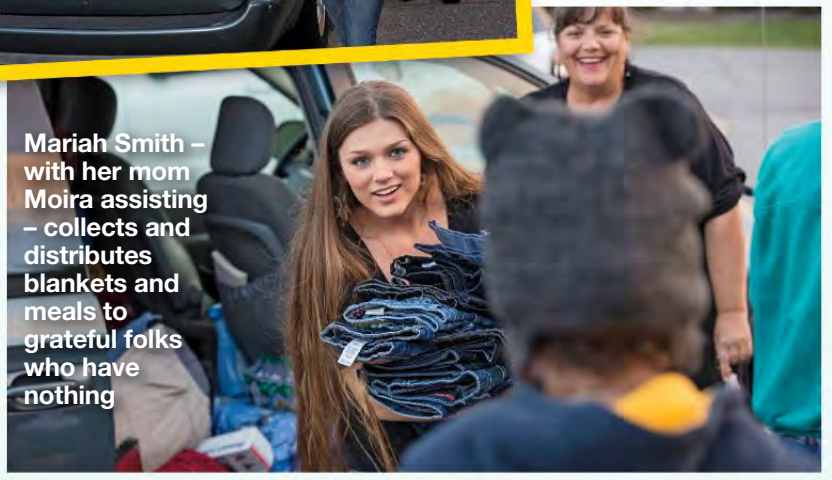
Teen who was abandoned baby NOW RUNS CHARITY FOR THE HOMELESS

All across the country, every day, good people perform acts of kindness for strangers. Only rarely do they receive recognition for their selfless work. In our ongoing series, The ENQUIRER will put the spotlight on those who care enough to make life better for those around them.

BORN and abandoned on Christmas Eve 19 years ago, Mariah Smith has become a BIG holiday present to the homeless!

Bitter cold has already swept across America this year – but thousands of homeless people are keeping a little bit warmer thanks to the big-hearted teen, who's made it her personal crusade to give blankets to the less fortunate.

"I'm helping the homeless because I want them to know that someone cares," says Mariah, who founded the charity Blankets for the Homeless Hampton Roads in Virginia Beach, Va. "I hope what we are doing brings awareness to something so tragic."



Mariah Smith – with her mom Moira assisting – collects and distributes blankets and meals to grateful folks who have nothing

IRONICALLY, MARIAH WAS BRIEFLY homeless as a newborn before being adopted at age 2 by her foster mother Moira Askew. And she began paying it forward in October 2011 when she was riding with her mom and saw an ailing homeless man outside a fast food restaurant.

"He had a deep, croupy cough," she recalls. "It was heartbreaking, and all I knew was that I wanted to do something to help him."

She grabbed an old blanket from the back seat and gave it to him along with the food they'd ordered.

"He immediately wrapped the blanket around himself and started eating," she says. "To say I was horrified is an understatement. On the way home, all I did was cry."

Back home, she rummaged through the house to find extra blankets. Then she made a flyer asking for blanket contributions and distributed more than 300 copies of it. Within a couple of days, she'd collected 50 of them – and that was just the start!

Two years later, Mariah boasts that her organization has handed out more than 40,000 blankets as well as food and a host of other necessities to help people survive life on the streets.

"I never knew the true meaning of hunger until I saw the way that man ate what I'd given him," says Mariah. "After that, I wanted to make sure that with every blanket we also gave a brown bag lunch."

And she delivers the goods personally, along with her mom and brother Irvin Bertucci.

Although they hit some pretty rough areas, Mariah insists it's not dangerous.

"The homeless are a community and look out for each other," she notes. "They're always asking us to help their friends, too, and tell us where we can find them."

NOW, MARIAH HOPES TO INSPIRE a movement, getting caring people like herself to collect blankets in cities and towns across the country.

"A blanket and lunch may not seem like much," she says. "But to someone who's sleeping on the ground, it's the difference between being hungry and cold – or not."
